Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: On page 3 of the Remarks, the applicant argues that Takei et al. do not disclose a polymer comprising only units derived from a hydroxyalkyl(meth)acrylate with a weight average molecular weight betweeb 5,000 and 20,000, The examiner would like to point to par.0060 of Takei which clearly teaches that the preferred range for the weight average molecular weights is between 1,000 to 30,000 and to par.0061 and 0064-0065, which clearly teach that the preferred polymer is a polymer with at least one hydroxy functional group, such as hydroxyalkyl (meth)acrylates.

On pages 4-5 of the Remarks, the applicant argues that Takei et al. teaches a polyhydroxypropyl methacrylate with weight average molecular weight of 130,000, which is outside the range of the instant application. The examiner agrees that Takei disclose such polymer but would like to note that Takei specifically teaches that polymers with weight average molecular weight over 30,000 do not meet the viscosity conditions (par.0060) and uses the above-mentioned polymer in a Comparative Example to show the high viscosity of the polymer solution (table in par.0162). One of ordinary skill in the art would clearly see the teaching against polymers with high weight average molecular weights, which is equivalent to the teaching of the instant application.

On page 6 of the Remarks, the applicant argues that Takei et al. disclose polymers comprising also a p-hydroxystyrene unit. However, the examiner would like to point out that such polymer are only a preferred embodiment of Takei et al. (par.par.0084-0093). Takei et al. clearly teaches that polymers derived from hydroxyalkyl (meth)acrylates may be used (par.0061 and 0064-0065).

The examiner maintans the rejections presented in the Final Rejection mailed on December 04, 2008.
